

Tabled last month, Malaysia's Budget for 2025 has included a wide array of incentives to support the growth and development of our ...

Kuala Lumpur (VNA) - The Malaysian Government has implemented several initiatives to encourage local companies to increase their efforts to manufacture electric ...

By taking advantage of government incentives, tax exemptions, utility discounts, and special offers and rebates from public charging point operators and EV companies, you ...

This guide helps you understand Malaysia's 2025 EV tax incentives, what you really save, and how EV charging affects your monthly TNB bill.

To make EVs more affordable and appealing, the government has rolled out the EV Car Subsidy Malaysia 2025, which allows eligible buyers to enjoy incentives of up to RM7,000.

Under the Budget 2025, PM Anwar has disclosed incentives and allocations for the transportation and automotive sectors.

In the retabled Budget 2023, it was proposed that the manufacturer of electric vehicle (EV) charging equipment be exempted ...

The implementation of the new road tax policy in 2026 marks a more mature development stage of Malaysia's ...

The ministry attributed the figure to moderate motor vehicle production, the introduction of new vehicle models and intensified ...

Some 32,535 units of Battery Electric Vehicles (BEV) passenger and commercial vehicles (excluding buses) have been registered in the country and are eligible to receive the benefits ...

Web: <https://www.kgangkologrp.co.za>

